UNFILTERED WHITE WINES

Every so often, you may see a label announce that the wine is unfiltered, basically this is an explanation for the wine's lack of clarity.

For many years, wineries have used techniques to make a wine appear crystal-clear. This makes for a more attractive product as you can see right through them.

However, these filtering processes may also remove elements that affect the flavors and aromas of a wine, so some winemakers choose not to filter. They believe that filtering strips the wine of its full character and complexity, avoiding filtering also maintains organic status.

We are great advocates of these unfiltered, organic wines and enjoy their richer and fuller flavor. Below we have selected a handful of special unfiltered wines imported by ourselves for you to enjoy:-

52	ribolla gialla (il carpino)	28.00
	this grape is grown exclusively in the collio hills of friuli - distinctive, tangy, forceful, ribolla flavours of baked apricots and dry dusty earth
53	bianco (il carpino)	28.00
	a blend of chardonnay, ribolla gialla and sauvignon, gentle, full bodied and persistent in flavour
54	malvasia (il carpino)	29.90
	bright yellow in colour the bouquet is winey with hints of green pepper. The flavour is dry without being harsh 55	gaiospino fumé (fattoria coroncino)	32.00
	it is a mid, bright yellow gold. Rich, creamy nose with some nutty notes. Very full palate - very rich and powerful, with deep and concentrated flavours
56	kaplja (damijan)	39.00
	creamy, silky textured, sweetly scented, though rigorously dry on the palate, add to this intense orange blossoms and you have only the beginning of the description of this outstanding wine! Damijan is the maverick of Friulian wine making
